With NatWest International's identity verification partner, Mitek, you will be able to make the changes you want from your smartphone, anywhere and at anytime.

What is Mitek?

Mitek is a digital identification platform that verifies people using digital footprints, ID document authentication and facial biometrics.

What does that mean for you?

Mitek will ask you to take a selfie and pictures of your documents.

Why use Mitek?

Mitek is a convenient and efficient method of verifying people no matter where they are in the world. As well as being safer, it can be done in a short space time, provided you have all the documentation you need. Is Mitek safe to use?

Mitek is incredibly safe for you to use. It encrypts your connection to keep your data secure. Additionally, your details are permanently deleted from the Mitek platform when the bank receives the necessary information from you.

When You Would Use Mitek

You will be sent a Mitek link to complete when:

- Opening a Business Current Account.
- Opening a Savings Account.
- Carrying out account amendments. This would be applicable regardless of whether it is a sole or joint account.

Tips before starting the process

- Ensure you have your proof of identity eg. passport or driving licence. The next page provides some of the typical documents we usually ask for but if you cannot provide them for whatever reason, please contact us to ask for more information.
- Ensure that all of your documents are in date or were created in the time scale specified.
- Give your smartphone camera a quick clean so that your selfie is clear and Mitek can easily verify you.

When will we ask you to bring documentation in to our branch?

Sometimes Mitek won't be able to verify the identification you provide. In those situations you will be asked to bring in the original document for our branch to verify.

Business name

This is the legal name that you gave your business when you started, for example Joe's Barbers.

This may be different from the name under which you are registered, and is likely used on material such as letterheads and email signatures, if you use them. If your business used to have a different name, we will want to know that as well.

Any other names

Your business may operate or be registered under a different name to your business name.

For example, your legal name may be Joe's Barbers, but it may be registered with Jersey Financial Services as Joe's Barbers Limited, yet also trade on the high street simply as Joe's.

Principal trading address

This is where your business operates from. It could be your home address, or the address of an office you rent or own.

We will need to carry out various credit checks and other searches so it is important they have your current business address so they can identify you correctly and not confuse you with any other business of a similar name.

Business correspondence address

This is the address where you would like us to send any correspondence. It may be the same as your business address.

Contact details

Your personal and business email address, phone number and any other methods in which you would like we to contact you.

Business start date

The date your business started, or plans to start, trading.

Main business activity

A description of your main business activity and any products and services you offer, as well as details of what the account will be used for.

There are some industries where we will need to understand in greater detail the nature of your business, as they are more complicated.

If your business is one of the sectors regulated by a UK professional body, for example, solicitors and estate agents, we will ask if you hold the licences you need to trade and will want details of your licence names and numbers

Business investment

The amount of funds you have invested or plan to invest in your business.

For existing businesses, this will cover what you have invested in your business over the past five years. This includes cash funds or investments in other major assets, such as property or large-scale equipment.

For new businesses, we will want to know the source of your funds and, if they will be paid into your account, how much from each source.

Banks have to understand this information to meet regulations relating to financial crime.

No. of employees

A breakdown of how many employees you have and their employment status

We may want to know how many people work for your business in any capacity. This includes full-time, part-time or non-contract workers.

For any business who trade outside the UK

A breakdown including:

- the countries they are based in; and
- the rough share of business turnover or the amounts per customer or supplier.

This could also include activity using e-traders, for example, if you use Amazon or eBay for business purposes that involves payment either into or out of the UK.

An estimation of how much money your business expects to receive from business trading over the next 12 months.

You'll have to provide an estimated figure, which could be based on your previous year's turnover (if this applies), your business plan for the coming year (if you have one), or your realistic estimate.

How much money you expect to pay into your account

An estimate of how much money you expect to be paying into your account over the next 12 months, the way you plan to do it (for example, in cash, cheques or electronic payments, and in what currencies, if not sterling) and how often you expect the payments into your account to be.

This is needed because banks need to monitor expected activity versus actual activity to highlight any unusual activity on your account.

Your tax status

We will have to find out the tax status of you or your business and so may ask for more tax information if necessary. This may also include the tax identification number.

If you are a sole trader, your tax identification number (TIN) is normally your National Insurance number.

If you are a limited company or partnership, you will have a 'unique tax reference' number (UTR).

Depending on the information you give and your type of business, the bank may have to report your tax status to the relevant tax authorities.

Sources of income

We will want to know where your income comes from.

For example, what percentage of your income comes from selling goods and services, or from other sources such as subscriptions, donations, royalties and interest.
